Topics /Description	Presenter
Disaster 101 Disasters are local, response and recovery begin in your own home and expand to your neighborhood, neighbor helping neighbor. Learn the phases and functions of disaster, what is VOAD, what is a Long-Term Recovery Group and why is resource management important.
Long term recovery 101 Effective long-term recovery is achieved by working together, being inclusive, good organization, understanding the roles and responsibilities of those who serve people affected by the event, and support individuals to recover successfully. Attendees will learn best practices for disaster recovery from an experienced disaster recovery expert.
The Role of the State The State of Oregon provides direction and coordinates between FEMA programs, state programs and agencies, striving to connect the people of Oregon with assistance and services to recover successfully. The state will continue to support long term recovery and the Blue Mountain Region Long Term Recovery Group until the group has completed its work. You will gain an understanding of the state's role and what they will do to support those affected by the event, the community, and Blue Mountain Region Long Term Recovery Group efforts.
FEMA Sequence of Delivery The disaster recovery process begins with neighbors helping neighbors, continues with insurance, FEMA Individual Assistance, other Federal Programs, and personal resources to achieve successful recovery. Participants will learn the importance of non-duplication of benefits, and resource management principals to attain effective recovery.

FEMA Information Sharing FEMA collects information on applicants that can be useful to you. This information is protected by The Privacy Act of 1974. This webinar will answer the questions: How do I get information? Why do I need it? How can I use it? Who can I share it with?
FEMA Individual Assistance FEMA Individual Assistance provides several programs to support the state and applicant's disaster recovery. These programs include Housing Assistance and Other Needs Assistance providing funds for housing, and replacement of personal property. Participants will learn more about the Individual Assistance Programs available to assist those affected by the event.
Public Assistance Individual Assistance (IA) is provided to individuals and households for personal losses. Public Assistance (PA) provides services for public buildings and infrastructure. Participants will gain understanding of the difference in IA and PA services and programs available to assist in recovery.
FEMA Mitigation FEMA mitigation offers programs, information and tools to help those affected rebuild communities stronger, better, and more disaster resistant. Attendees will receive information and tools useful as you rebuild your community.
FEMA Disability Integration There are several services available to people with disabilities and providers that can assist with the needs. Participants will learn how to access services, and some of the resources
FEMA Civil Rights

FEMA is committed to equal opportunity for its employees, applicants for employment at FEMA, and the members of the public seeking access to FEMA programs and activities. Equal Rights Advisors are here to assist and support people before during and after disaster. Participants will receive information that will provide better understanding of your rights and responsibilities, and resources when serving disaster communities.
Resources from Other Federal Partners:
Small Business Administration (SBA) SBA is not just for businesses. The SBA also has programs that can provide low interest loans to homeowners and renters to assist with home repair and replacement of personal property. Participants will learn about services and programs available those affected by the disaster.
Internal Revenue Service (IRS) Following a disaster, the IRS has a number of services and good information useful to those affected by the event. Participants will learn about filing an amended return, getting access to previous tax returns, and calculating a causality loss under the National Disaster Relief Act of 2008.
United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) USDA has several programs available in the form of loans, grants, and other services that are available to assist people affected by disasters. Participants will learn about available services and programs that may provide additional funding or loan opportunities for recovery.
